

JUSTICE (and humor) FOR ALL
(A monthly humor letter) March 1998

This humor letter contains both clean original humor as well as clean bits of humor that have found their way to me via Email. Many times the original author is unknown so if you read something here that you find very funny it's OK to assume that I wrote it.

You have my permission to reproduce and distribute any items you'd like as well as the entire humor letter just so long as you are doing it for free and not for profit.- Enjoy!

For permission to use any parts of this humorletter in company newsletters please contact Jeff at: jjjustice@mindspring.com. Please feel free to download it to others or cut it up and post it on the bulletin board.- Enjoy!

In tribute to Jeff Foxworthy moving back home to Atlanta

WHAT A VACATION!

I've got to admit that I was less than receptive when my wife first informed me that in order to use our frequent flyer mileage we'd have to stay abroad for a month. "How could I miss that much work? How could my nine-year-old keep up her studies? How could I miss that many episodes of Seinfeld?"

As it worked out, my assistant Janet did a fantastic job filling my calendar, Jennica had no problem keeping up with school and Seinfeld was repeats.

Friends warned me about how fast the Europeans drive on the Autobahn but it was still a shock. I averaged about 140 kph (84mph) and cars were just whizzing by me! I felt pretty macho the third day when I finally passed a guy in a Porsche, then my wife Diane pointed out that he was parked.

Our favorite area was the snow-capped Austrian Alps. I never thought I'd get to see scenery that beautiful. It was awesome! We stayed in Zimmer Freis which in German means "that crazy old lady's extra bedroom".

We topped off the vacation with a few weeks in India, home of some of the scariest drivers on the planet. It was a spiritual time for us. We spent the entire time in taxis praying we didn't hit a cow!

Taking that much time off turned out to be just what we all needed to recharge. To give you an idea of how de-stressed we were, as the wheels of our Delta flight left the runway to begin our 20-hour trek home, our two-year-old emptied the entire contents of her stomach on the three of us. Realizing that all of our fresh clothes were in our checked luggage we looked at each other and laughed (A lot harder than the people around us.).

Its great to be back and I look forward to laughing with you soon.
